

Loukianos Gatzoulis

Loukianos Gatzoulis, PhD, obtained his first degree in Electrical Engineering from the Aristotle University of Thessaloniki in 1993. He subsequently pursued postgraduate studies in Biomedical Engineering. He graduated with the degree of MSc in Bioengineering from the University of Strathclyde, and later with a PhD from the University of Edinburgh, UK, for work on intravascular ultrasound imaging. He subsequently worked at the wireless communication sector and as post-doc research fellow at the University of Strathclyde, in the UK. In 2005, he joined the ICT for Health Unit of the European Commission as a Scientific Officer. He is currently leading the research activities of ICT for Health in the area of Personal Health Systems.